This is a lecture and hands-on course.

The aim of periodontal regeneration therapy is to preserve teeth by regenerating the hard and soft tissues lost due to periodontal disease or trauma. The Single Flap Approach (SFA) represents a simplified procedure that allows to surgically access intrabony periodontal defects by raising a full thickness flap (either buccal or lingual depending on the defect extension). SFA and connective tissue graft may be combined with regenerative device to minimise the post-surgery recession following regenerative surgery.

Course objectives:

- Gain knowledge in the diagnostic and therapeutic procedures for the treatment of intraosseous defects in a regenerative sense.
Learn in detail the indications and surgical protocol of the single flap approach (SFA).
Learn to select the most appropriate yet simple regenerative technology based on the characteristics of a given defect in combination with the SFA.

- Learn when and how to combine SFA with connective tissue graft to overcome post surgery recession.
Hands-on component on pig jaws utilising the fundamental steps of the SFA in combination with the use of Straumann® Emdogain®.
