Ever since the take up of dental implants in the broader sense, the Removable Partial Denture has been largely replaced. However we often forget that all patients requiring replacement of missing teeth may not be suitable for dental implant treatment for one reason or another. The other option of fixed bridgework may also be unsuitable in many cases. It is in these patients we have to turn to Removable Partial Dentures. This half day seminar will present some concepts of partial denture therapy which will assist in general practice from the replacement of missing anterior teeth to the difficult free end saddle (Kennedy Class 1) removable partial denture. Acrylic and flexible base dentures will be discussed along with conventional cast metal bases and some more advanced semi-precision attachment concepts. This presentation will mainly focus on the clinical application of removable partial dentures from treatment planning through to the provision of successful partial dentures.

About the Presenter:

Dr John Pearson graduated from the University of Queensland and worked as a general practitioner before obtaining his MDSc in prosthodontics in 1986. He then entered Specialist Private Practice in Glen Iris in Victoria where he has operated until this day. During this period he has held positions as clinical demonstrator for undergraduate and graduate students at the Universities of Melbourne and Sydney. He has been involved as an examiner for the Australian Dental Council in Prosthetic Dentistry. He is past President of the Australian Prosthodontic Society (Vic Branch), and past Editor of the Australian Prosthodontic Society Newsletter. He is a member of the Australian and New Zealand Academy of Prosthetic Dentistry, the International College of Prosthetic Dentistry and other specialist societies within dentistry. He has been on the Australian Dental Association (Vic Branch) Executive, and on numerous committees within the ADA. He has been involved in the clinical teaching of the Biofunctional Prosthetic System (BPS) for Ivoclar Australia which involved trips to Lichtenstein and Germany for professional exchanges. He has presented on topics of removable prosthodontics in Australia and overseas.
